On March 24th, Google hosted the world's first WebRTC developer event, the WebRTC Protothon. The hackathon brought together developers and designers from around the world, with browser engineers at hand to give assistance when needed.

For more details, check out the WebRTC Google+ post about the event. There is also a summary document with great photos.

Check out the demos in action either through a video or see the live demos below:
